CRAZY SHIT

UnitedHealthcare®

CRAZY OR NAHH??

KILLER

Luigi Mangione is a 26-year-old from Maryland, he graduated from an elite school ($$$) and was valedictorian of his class (best grades). He learned to code in high school and helped start a club at Penn for people interested in gaming and game design. He earned undergraduate and graduate degrees in computer science from the University of Pennsylvania. He is a smart kid who had a privileged lifestyle. He experienced chronic back pain since his childhood. He cold-bloodedly shot and murdered the United States' largest insurance company's CEO, Brian Thompson. Mangione was captured at a McDonald's in Altoona, Pennsylvania, and was immediately identified as the main suspect. He had a written manifesto expressing his frustration towards corporate America, primarily the Healthcare system.

KILLED

UnitedHealthcare CEO Brian Thompson was 50 years old when Luigi murdered him. He was raised as a farm boy in rural Iowa to a working class family. He graduated valedictorian from his class and earned the roles of class president and even Homecoming King. He attended the University of Iowa, graduating with a degree in business administration with a major in accounting. He was named CEO of UnitedHealthcare in April 2021, after starting at the company in 2004, before working his way up. He was paid $10.2m last year. He had been facing insider trading allegations; a class-action lawsuit filed in May 2024 alleged that he sold $15m of his UnitedHealth Group shares, knowing that the company was reportedly facing an antitrust investigation by the US Department of Justice. The City of Hollywood Firefighters' Pension Fund initiated a complaint against Mr Thompson and other executives, accusing them of failing to tell investors about the investigation before selling more than $117m in company stock. The lawsuit remains active.

Mangione's manifesto has gone viral.

The revolution will not be televised. But there is social media....

"Imaginal Disc"

Imaginal

THIS IS MY SHITTT!! Magdalena Bay's sophomore album Imaginal Disc has been out for a few months now, and it has been an absolute fucking ride to listen to. This album is, in essence, the reason why I love music. It offers avant-garde production that pushes the boundaries of the pop genre while still paying homage to the conventional characteristics of its own.

This project delivers a compelling blend of acoustic and digital instrumentation, coming together to create a spacey, glitchy, and ethereal experience. It's driven by extremely hard-hitting drum sequences and exceptionally groovy basslines. Another big element that draws me into this album is the mixing. I won't get too deep into all the nerdy shit, but DAMN... The depth and clarity the mixes bring to the table are a testament to the album's quality and the incredible attention to detail shown by everyone involved in the project.

While listening, I also noticed one of my favorite things about this album is how they play with panning. Elements of the mix swirl and shift around your head, making the entire listening experience feel like a dream you're just floating through—yet it never becomes overwhelming (at least for me).

The songwriting on this album is also worthy of praise. While it doesn't feel like the lyrical aspect is the main focus of the project, there are plenty of memorable highlights that touch on themes of self-discovery, staying true to yourself, and even romanticism. These lyrics are beautifully complemented by the singer's ethereal tone, which seamlessly blends with the instrumentals.

This album is already an incredibly rewarding listen, even without paying much attention to the lyrics. But the more you listen, the more the lyrics stick with you—perfect for belting out at the top of your lungs like a maniac.

I'm conflicted writing this review because it feels like no words can truly do the project justice. So I'll just leave you with this advice: "GO LISTEN TO DAT SHIIII!"
